

I urge you to leave New Jersey's Do Not Call law as it stands now. If the complaint is that businesses with whom I have done business in the last 18 days want to call, too bad. Most of them have my e-mail address anyway and bombard me with junk mail which I can at least delete.

Not having telemarketers call, at all hours despite the restrictions placed on them, has been a blessing in our household. There is a disabled adult home during the day who does not need to be harrassed & I do not need to listen to the phone ring when I come home from a full day's work to take care of this person. Recently, a telemarketer called from a bank card company with whom I do business, which I know is allowed, but he called after 9:00 PM and when I pointed that out to him, he called me a "bitch". If this is the caliber of person doing telemarketing business, we certainly do not need any more of these phone calls. Thank you for your consideration in this matter.
